On October 12, 2005, plaintiffs filed a complaint under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act ("IDEA"), 20 U.S.C. § 1401, et seq., challenging the August 1, 2005, decision of the McGeorge School of Law Special Education Hearing Office. Plaintiffs assert that defendants denied the minor plaintiff G.W. a Free Appropriate Public Education ("FAPE") in the Least Restrictive Environment ("LRE") and that the Hearing Officer erred in finding otherwise. Plaintiffs seek a reversal of the Hearing Officer's decision, along with damages and reasonable attorneys' fees and costs. This matter was heard on August 2, 2006.

In an IDEA action, the party challenging the Hearing Officer's decision bears the burden of persuasion. Clyde K.

1 v. Puyallup School District, No. 3, 35 F.3d 1396, 1399 (9th
2 Cir. 1994), superseded by statute on other grounds. The court 3 shall receive the records of the administrative proceedings; 4 shall hear additional evidence at the request of a party; and 5 basing its decision on the preponderance of the evidence, 6 shall grant appropriate relief. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(i)(2)(C).
7 Although judicial review of state administrative proceedings
8 under the IDEA is less deferential than review of other agency
9 actions, Ojai Unified Sch. Dist. v. Jackson, 4 F.3d 1467, 1471
10 (9th Cir. 1993), "the provision that a reviewing court base 11 its decision on the 'preponderance of the evidence' is by no
12 means an invitation to the courts to substitute their own
13 notions of sound educational policy for those of the school
14 authorities which they review." Bd. of Educ. of Hendrick
15 Hudson Central Sch. Dist., Westchester County v. Rowley, 458 16 U.S. 176, 206 (1982). "The amount of deference accorded the 17 hearing officer's findings increases where they are thorough 18 and careful." Capistrano Unified Sch. Dist. v. Wartenberg, 59
19 F.3d 884, 891 (9th Cir. 1995). After considering the Hearing 20 Officer's findings carefully and her resolution of each 21 material issue, the court is "free to accept or reject the 22 findings in part or in whole." Capistrano Unified, 59 F.3d at 23 891 (quoting Gregory K. v. Longview Sch. Dist., 811 F.2d 1307, 24 1311 (9th Cir. 1987))(internal quotation marks omitted).
25 "When the court has before it all the evidence regarding the 26 disputed issues, it may make a final judgment in what 'is not 27 a true summary judgment procedure [but] a bench trial based on 28 a stipulated record.'" Miller ex rel. Miller v. San Mateo-

1 Foster City Unified Sch. Dist., 318 F.Supp.2d 851, 859 (N.D.
2 Cal. 2004)(quoting Ojai, 4 F.3d at 1472).

3 Having reviewed the record, I find the following: G.W.
4 was born in March 1998. At the age of two he began receiving 5 specialized educational services from the Emeryville Child
6 Development Center and the East Bay Agency for Children 7 Therapeutic Nursery School. He was evaluated in July 2002 by 8 the Regional Center of the East Bay and diagnosed with a 9 Pervasive Developmental Disorder-Not Otherwise Specified.

10 In September 2002, G.W. moved to Union City with his 11 family and began attending the Alvarado Elementary School in 12 the New Haven Unified School District (the "District"). He 13 was originally placed in a Special Day Class ("SDC") at the 14 school. The class was small, with a low student to teacher 15 ratio, and he received weekly speech sessions. Because there 16 were significant delays in his communication and social 17 skills, the District placed G.W. in a program with intensive 18 instruction and focus on developing his language and learning 19 skills by trained professionals. However, because of his 20 severe behavioral problems - including frequently kicking, 21 biting and throwing objects at staff and other students - it 22 was eventually decided that he would receive intensive home
23 instruction, along with services from the Stepping Stones 24 Center for Autistic Spectrum Disorders ("Stepping Stones").

25 G.W.'s mother removed him from the Stepping Stones
26 program in June 2003. An Individualized Education Program 27
28

1 ("IEP")<sup>1</sup> meeting was held in August 2003 to determine the 2 child's future schooling. This eventually led to a new 3 assessment by the Diagnostic Center, Northern California, in 4 January 2004, which found that G.W. was mentally retarded.
5 The assessment concluded he could return to a classroom 6 setting if he were given appropriate support, such as a 7 consistent routine and highly structured environment. Other 8 recommendations included engaging G.W. in preferred
9 activities, allowing frequent breaks and reinforcing positive 10 behavior and teaching alternatives to negative behavior. In 11 the first week of March 2004, G.W. returned to Alvarado 12 Elementary School. He was in a SDC, with a limited number of 13 students, a familiar and fixed routine and structured 14 environment. His teachers allowed him to engage in his 15 preferred activities, and a behavior intervention plan was 16 implemented, including setting up a second classroom for 17 G.W.'s individual use as a safe and separate place if his 18 behavior warranted removal.

19 G.W. continued to exhibit extreme and often violent 20 behavior. Despite his having two adults with him at all times 21 and being allowed to take frequent breaks, his teachers 22 complained that he was still kicking, biting, hitting and 23 screaming. The staff were concerned that G.W. was a danger to 24 himself and others and that he exhibited some of the worst
25 behavioral problems in their experience. Because G.W.'s

26
27 <sup>1</sup> An Individualized Education Program is tailored to 28 the unique needs of the disabled child. 20 U.S.C. § 1412(a)(4). An IEP is a written document prepared annually that outlines the educational plan for the student.

1 placement at Alvarado Elementary School was not working, the 2 District suggested moving G.W. to the Spectrum satellite 3 program ("Spectrum") at Bernard White Middle School. The 4 mother agreed. On April 20, 2004, G.W. started attending 5 Spectrum.

6 On June 8, 2004, the IEP team convened for G.W.'s annual 7 assessment. By this time, G.W. had been attending Spectrum
8 for a few months. The team recommended his continued 9 placement there with additional speech and language therapy 10 sessions lasting 30 minutes twice a week. G.W. was also 11 eligible for extended school year services. Based on the 12 Spectrum education coordinator's recommendations, the IEP team 13 also adopted a behavior intervention plan calling for 14 antecedent behavior, replacement behavior, reinforcement
15 strategies and emergency procedures to address G.W.'s 16 aggression. Spectrum staff observed some improvement during 17 his time at Spectrum. His violent outbursts and tantrums 18 seemed to be decreasing, and he seemed to be increasing from 19 40% to 85%-90% accuracy in completing tasks.

20 On September 27, 2004, G.W.'s mother removed him from 21 Spectrum because she felt that Spectrum was inappropriately 22 disciplining her son. In response, the District convened an 23 IEP meeting in October 2004, at which it was agreed that the 24 District would fund a new private assessment of G.W., to be 25 conducted by Dr. Wolk. The assessment took place between 26 November 2004 and January 2005. Dr. Wolk diagnosed G.W. with 27 mild to moderate mental retardation. She found that G.W.
28 suffered from impaired social, emotional, language, and

1 cognitive skills, but concluded that G.W. could interact 2 socially and, with appropriate school and home programming, 3 could improve his skills. She made numerous recommendations, 4 including that G.W. start out at home with an aide, who would 5 help him gradually transition to a school setting with a 6 limited class size and trained professionals. She also 7 recommended that G.W. be acclimated to the classroom, 8 encouraged and positively reinforced to communicate by using 9 language and sign language and exposed to a fixed routine with 10 little variability. G.W. would benefit from communication 11 involving short, simple statements with pictures and other 12 sensory input and regular interaction with another child of 13 similar language ability.

14 Members of the IEP team and G.W.'s mother met with Dr.
15 Wolk to discuss her report in February 2002.<sup>2</sup> The District 16 reiterated its offer of placing G.W. in Spectrum. Plaintiffs 17 rejected this, and on May 6, 2005, G.W.'s attorney filed a due 18 process hearing request. The District convened another IEP
19 meeting on May 16, 2005, where it continued to offer placement
20 in Spectrum with supplemental speech and language therapy
21 services. Plaintiffs wanted to implement Dr. Wolk's
22 recommendations in a public school setting, but the District
23 refused to give G.W. the option of moving back into a public 24 elementary school. Other potential non public school programs

25 <sup>2</sup> Plaintiffs have cited no authority for their claim 26 that their procedural due process rights were violated because 27 Dr. Wolk did not meet with the entire IEP team. The February 28 2005 meeting was not a typical IEP meeting, unlike the IEPs in June 2004, October 2004 and May 2005, but was focused on discussing Dr. Wolk's report.

1 were either unacceptable to plaintiffs or would not accept 2 G.W. Plaintiffs did not accept continued placement in 3 Spectrum, so the due process hearing went forward. The 4 Hearing Officer heard testimony from May 31, 2005 to June 8, 5 2005, and issued a decision on August 1, 2005.

6 The Hearing Officer decided that the District was not 7 denying G.W. a FAPE in the LRE. She concluded that G.W. had 8 special needs due to his behavioral and language difficulties, 9 as borne out by numerous IEPs and assessments of several 10 specialists and teachers, and that he required specialized 11 instruction and one-on-one support with a highly structured 12 environment, a consistent routine, several breaks and behavior 13 intervention. The Hearing Officer additionally concluded that 14 the District recognized G.W.'s needs in the June 2004, October 15 2004 and May 2005 IEPs and that placement in Spectrum with 16 supplemental services addressed these needs. Spectrum serves 17 children with autism, developmental delays and Down's 18 Syndrome. There are three classes, ranging in size from three 19 to ten students, with a staff of teachers, aides and several 20 specialists, including speech and language therapists. During 21 his time at Spectrum, G.W. was in a class of four students, 22 ranging in age from six to ten years. He had a 1:1 aide, and 23 there was a plan in place to address G.W.'s language needs and 24 behavioral problems. Because of this, the Hearing Officer
25 concluded that the District offered a FAPE. She further found 26 that the District's offer of placement in Spectrum was 27 reasonably calculated to provide G.W. an educational benefit 28 since it was meant to allow G.W. to improve his behavior and 1 succeed in school and there was some evidence that it was 2 working. She also concluded that the District's offer

3 comported with G.W.'s IEPs. After considering the testimony
4 of plaintiffs' witnesses and plaintiffs' contention that G.W.
5 would benefit from attending a public school by interacting
6 with typically developing children, the Hearing Officer
7 concluded that because placement in a SDC in a public school
8 had been unsuccessful in 2003 and 2004, Spectrum was the LRE 9 for G.W. The Hearing Officer also found that while the 10 testimony that G.W.'s behavior had improved while at home was 11 not contradicted, that testimony did not address G.W.'s 12 behavior in a school setting and that his needs and behavior 13 had not changed significantly to warrant removal from 14 Spectrum.

15 Plaintiffs timely challenged the Hearing Officer's 16 decision. As noted above, under the IDEA, the district court
17 must give "due weight" to the Hearing Officer's factual 18 determinations. Rowley, 458 U.S. at 206. In this case, the 19 Hearing Officer's determinations are thorough and careful, and 20 I accord them great weight. Her decision spans 26 single-21 spaced pages, and covers in detail all of the issues raised 22 during the six-day hearing. She discussed the expertise and 23 credibility of witnesses that came before her at the hearing 24 and carefully and methodically evaluated their testimony. She 25 considered all assessments and IEPs, including the Diagnostic 26 Center's report of January 2004 and Dr. Wolk's report of 27 January 2005. She examined and addressed all issues relevant 28 to the question of whether the New Haven Unified School

1 District offered G.W. a FAPE in the LRE.

2 Having reviewed the record, I agree with the Hearing 3 Officer that the services provided by the District pursuant to 4 the 2004 IEPs and offered pursuant to the May 2005 IEP 5 constituted a FAPE. They were reasonably calculated to, and 6 did, confer a meaningful educational benefit to G.W. See 7 Adams v. State of Oregon, 195 F.3d 1141, 1149 (9th Cir.
8 1999)("Instead of asking whether the [District's offer] was 9 adequate in light of the [student's] progress, the district 10 court should have asked the more pertinent question of whether 11 [it] was appropriately designed and implemented so as to 12 convey [the student] with a meaningful benefit."). At the 13 hearing on August 2, 2006, plaintiffs' counsel essentially 14 conceded that had the District offered these services at a 15 public school, plaintiffs would have accepted them.

16 The real dispute is whether placement at Spectrum
17 constituted the LRE. States must ensure that a disabled child 18 has access to education in the LRE, which means that a 19 disabled child should be educated with non-disabled children, 20 or "mainstreamed," to the maximum extent appropriate. 20 21 U.S.C. § 1412(a)(5)(A). Poolaw v. Bishop, 67 F.3d 830, 835
22 (9th Cir. 1995). However, "mainstreaming" is not an "absolute 23 commandment." Poolaw, 67 F.3d at 836.

24 Plaintiffs' claim rests largely on their interpretation
25 of Dr. Wolk's report. First, they interpret Dr. Wolk's 26 recommendation that G.W. needed a special day class setting to 27 mean that he had to be placed in public school.
28 Unfortunately, Dr. Wolk did not recommend a specific placement

1 or address whether the placement should be in a public 2 school.<sup>3</sup> Nor did Dr. Wolk testify. Both sides had an 3 opportunity to call her at the hearing below and to supplement 4 the record before me with her testimony. Neither side chose 5 to do so. Nevertheless, there was substantial testimony on 6 this issue, from which I conclude that a special day class 7 describes an environment and not a location. All of 8 defendants' witnesses so testified as did plaintiffs' expert, 9 Dr. Weiss. Ms. Smith, plaintiffs' educational advocate, 10 testified that in her experience a special day class had to be 11 in a public school setting. But I give less weight to her 12 testimony since she was plaintiffs' advocate. Based on this 13 record, I conclude that placement in Spectrum could be a 14 special day class and that the environment Spectrum provided 15 is consistent with what all the education professionals who 16 testified believe is required in a special day class. To the 17 extent educators may disagree on this issue, I am mindful of 18 the admonition that courts should not "substitute their own
19 notions of sound educational policy for those of the school
20 authorities which they review." Rowley, 458 U.S. at 206.

21
22 <sup>3</sup> Based on their reading of Dr. Wolk's report, 23 plaintiffs also claim that the District violated plaintiffs' 24 right to have G.W.'s parents involved in the development of 25 G.W.'s IEP by failing to follow Dr. Wolk's recommendations 26 which plaintiffs contend required G.W. be placed in public 27 school. Parents do have a right to participate in the 28 development of their child's IEP. Amanda J. v. Clark Co.
School District, 267 F.3d 877, 882 (9th Cir. 2001). However,
G.W.'s mother was present at all IEP meetings and the meeting with Dr. Wolk. Additionally, as discussed above, Dr. Wolk did not specifically address whether G.W. should be placed in a public school.

1 Plaintiffs next argue that Dr. Wolk's references to the 2 child's need to associate with "developmentally appropriate" 3 peers means that he must be placed in a setting in which he is 4 exposed to children who do not have developmental 5 disabilities, which cannot happen at Spectrum. Plaintiffs go 6 on to argue that one of the reasons G.W. misbehaved or 7 otherwise had difficulty learning is that he mimicked the 8 behavior of other disabled children when he was at Spectrum.
9 The District contends that Dr. Wolk's references to G.W. being 10 with developmentally appropriate children are made in the 11 context of getting him out of his home, where his mother has 12 kept him, so he can interact with his peers. The District 13 contends that developmentally appropriate peers are those with 14 which he can readily interact and that placing him in a 15 setting with non-disabled children has proven more restrictive 16 for him since he has even greater difficulty functioning and 17 spends more time with staff than with his peers. Once again, 18 Dr. Wolk did not define this term, and there is no evidence in 19 the record of what the term "developmentally appropriate" 20 means in the field of child education. Whatever the precise 21 meaning of the term, the court agrees with the Hearing Officer
22 that in the fall of 2004 and the first half of 2005, Spectrum 23 was the LRE in which G.W. could be placed. Prior efforts to 24 place him at Alvarado Elementary School, a public school, had 25 been unsuccessful because of his behavioral problems. At 26 Spectrum, his behavior and his educational development seemed 27 to be slowly but surely improving. Nor is there any evidence 28 that his problems resulted from mimicking the behavior of the 1 other disabled students at Spectrum. To the contrary, the 2 evidence was that he was far more misbehaved than his peers.

 3 Clyde K., 35 F.3d at 1402 ("Disruptive behavior that 4 significantly impairs the education of other students strongly 5 suggests a mainstream placement is no longer appropriate" and 6 school officials "are not required to sit on their hands when 7 a disabled student's behavioral problems prevent both him and 8 those around him from learning."). I therefore conclude that 9 the IEPs offered by the District in 2004 and 2005 provided, or 10 would have provided, if accepted, the child with a FAPE in the 11 LRE.<sup>4</sup>

12 Therefore, IT IS ORDERED that plaintiffs' motion for 13 summary judgment is DENIED. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that 14 judgment shall be entered in favor of the District.<sup>5</sup>

15 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the parties' evidentiary 16 objections are OVERRULED. I have not considered plaintiffs' 17 supplemental declarations, nor have I allowed Dr. Wolk to 18 testify.<sup>6</sup> [docket ## 53, 59] As to plaintiffs' objections on 19 grounds of relevance, defendants' attempts to procure the

---

20 21 <sup>4</sup> I offer no view on whether the IEPs which are considered in this order are currently appropriate.

22 <sup>5</sup> Although the District did not move for summary 23 judgment, the court may grant judgment in its favor in an IDEA proceeding. See Kassbaum v. Steppenwolf Productions, Inc., 236
 24 F.3d 487, 494 (9th Cir. 2000); Hunger v. Leininger, 15 F.3d 664, 669 (7th Cir. 1994).

25 <sup>6</sup> After the case management conference, I set a 26 schedule for the parties to supplement the administrative 27 record if they wished to do so. Plaintiffs did not timely move 28 to supplement the administrative record. Their subsequent request that Dr. Wolk testify is untimely. For similar reasons, I have not considered plaintiffs' declarations of Valerie Hodges and Jean Murrell Adams.

1 record are relevant to plaintiffs' argument that the failure
2 to provide them with the record violated their procedural 3 rights. [docket ## 36, 51, 55] As to defendants' objections 4 to the filing of the mediation agreement, I asked that it be 5 filed for the limited purpose of determining whether the 6 parties had agreed to be bound by Dr. Wolk's recommendations, 7 not for the purpose of "prov[ing] liability for or invalidity 8 of the claim or its amount." FRE 408. Since the mediation 9 agreement did not speak to the issue, it is irrelevant.

10 [docket # 49] To the extent that any of the parties' 11 objections are valid, they go to the weight of the evidence.
12 The District's request for judicial notice is GRANTED.
